

Far over the Misty Mountainz coald,
Too dunjonz depe and cavvernz oald,
We must awa, are brake ov da,
Too ceke our pale enchaanted goald.

The dworvz ov yoer made mity spelz,
While hammerz fel like ringing belz,
In placez depe, whare darc ththingz slepe,
In hollo haulz beneeth the felz.

For ainshent king and elvish lord
Dhare menni a gleming goalden hoerd
Dha shaipt and raut, and lite dha caut,
Too hide in gemz on hilt ov soerd.

On cilver neclacez dha strung
The flouwering starz, on crounz dha hung
The draggon-fire, on twisted wire
Dha mesht the lite ov moone and sun.

Far over the Misty Mountainz coald,
Too dunjonz depe and cavvernz oald,
We must awa, are brake ov da,
Too clame our long-forgotten goald.

Goblets dha carvd dhare for themcelvz,
And harps ov goald, whare no man delvz
Dhare la dha long, and menni a song
Wauz sung unherd bi men or elvz.

The pianz wer roering on the hiats,
The wind wauz moning in the nite,
The fire wauz red, it flaming spred,
The trese like torchez blaizd withe lite.

The belz wer ringing in the dale,
And men looct up withe facez pale.
The draggonz ire, moer feers dhan fire,
Lade lo dhare touwerz and housez frale.

The mountane smoact beneeth the moone.
The dworvz, dha herd the tramp ov doome.
Dha fled the haul too diying faul
Beneeth hiz fete, beneeth the moone.

Far over the Misty Mountainz grim,
Too dunjonz depe and cavvernz dim,
We must awa, are brake ov da,
Too win our harps and goald from him!

The wind wauz on the witherd heeth,
But in the forest sterd no lefe:
Dhare shaddose la bi nite or da,
And darc ththingz cilent crept beneeth.

The wind came doun from mountainz coald,
And like a tide it roerd and roald.
The braanchez groand, the forest moand,
And leevz wer lade uppon the moald.

The wind went on from West too Eest;
Aul muivment in the forest ceest.
But shril and harsh acros the marsh,
Its whisling voicez wer releest.

The graacez hist, dhare tascelz bent,
The reedz wer ratling—on it went.
Oar shaken poole under hevvenz coole,

Whare racing cloudz wer toern and rent.

It paast the Loanly Mountane bare,
And swept abuv the draggonz lare:
Dhare blac and darc la boalderz starc,
And fliying smoke wauz in the are.

It left the werld and tooc its flite
Over the wide cese ov the nite.
The moone cet sale upon the gale,
And starz wer fand too leping lite.

Under the Mountane darc and taul,
The King haz cum untoo hiz haul!
Hiz fo iz ded, the Werm ov Dred,
And evver so hiz fose shal faul!

The soerd iz sharp, the spere iz long,
The arro swift, the Gate iz strong.
The hart iz boald dhat loox on goald;
The dworvz no moer shal suffer rong.

The dworvz ov yoer made mity spelz,
While hammerz fel like ringing belz
In placez depe, whare darc ththingz slepe,
In hollo haulz beneeth the felz.

On cilver neclacez dha strang
The lite ov starz, on crounz dha hung
The draggon-fire, from twisted wire
The melody ov harps dha rung.

The mountane throne wuns moer iz frede!
O! Waundering foke, the summonz hede!

Cum haist! Cum haist! Acros the waist!
The king ov frend and kin haz nede.

Nou caul we over the mountainz coald,
"Cum bac untoo the cavvernz oald!"
Here at the gaits the king awaits,
Hiz handz ar rich withe gemz and goald.

The king haz cum untoo hiz haul
Under the Mountane darc and taul.
The Werm ov Dred iz slane and ded,
And evver so our fose shal faul!

Faerwel we caul too harth and haul!
Dho wind ma blo and rane ma faul,
We must awa, are brake ov da
Far over the wood and mountane taul.

Too Rivvendel, whare Elvz yet dwel
In glaidz beneeth the misty fel.
Throo moor and waist we ride in haist,
And whither then we canot tel.

Withe fose ahed, behiand us dred,
Beneeth the ski shal be our bed,
Until at laast our toil be paast,
Our gerny dun, our errand sped.

We must awa! We must awa!
We ride befoer the brake ov da!
